Reinhardt. Reinhardt began playing guitar at a very young age, adhering to the Gypsy traditions passed down through generations but also paying close attention to the works of American artists such as Louis Armstrong and Duke Ellington.

In 1934, Reinhardt met violinist Stephane
Grappelli, and in a short period of time, the Quintette of the Hot Club of France was born. The group was an original concept; an all string Jazz ensemble and a vehicle to present to the world Jazz Manouche.

Dan Levinson’s Fête Manouche will pay tribute to the original Quintette and to Mr.
Reinhardt.

REVIEW - DREW NUGENT AND THE MIDNIGHT SOCIETY

The Time: 2:00 p.m. – 5:30 p.m., Sunday, April 25, 2010
The Place: First Unitarian Church, 730 Halstead Road, Wilmington, Delaware
The Band: Drew Nugent and the Midnight Society: Drew Nugent, trumpet, piano and vocals; Aaron Irwin, clarinet and alto sax; Paul Salter, acoustic guitar; Gary Cattley, string bass and tuba; Skip Rorich, drums.

Copyright © 2010 by Drew Nugent

Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery.

Thomas “Fats” Waller, in 1934, entered the RCA-Victor New York recording studio with a group of musicians. It was Waller’s first appearance in the recording studio in almost two years. Named “Fats Waller and his Rhythm”, the format of the Rhythm recordings featured the engaging vocals and piano of Waller, singing mostly popular songs of the day with brief solos from the band added for good measure. The resulting recordings were an instant success and spawned many imitations. Trumpeter Henry “Red” Allen led a similar group on ARC, Wingy Manone, the mysterious Tempo King (and his Kings of Tempo), Putney Dandridge, Bob Howard, and even later editions of Red McKenzie’s Mound City Blue Blowers followed this arrangement.

Drew Nugent

Drew Nugent and the Midnight Society follow Waller’s lead as well. On an overcast afternoon at the First Unitarian Church, Mr. Nugent, aided by clarinetist/saxist Aaron Irwin, guitarist Paul Salter, bassist Gary Cattley and drummer Skip Rorich, provided a merry brand of Jazz exuding an internal sunshine.

The formula for most of the concert was similar to a “Rhythm” recording: melody chorus, vocal by Nugent, split choruses by two or more instruments (or two instruments trading 4’s) then a final out chorus with a vocal reprise or with the whole band. Most of the selections were 1920’s – 1930’s standards, works from Red Nichols and Jean Goldkette, and a few surprises (“11:30, Saturday Night” recorded by Arthur Schutt’s orchestra and Nugent’s own composition, “Amy”).

Nugent’s vocals were jazzy and scatty, recalling the memory of Jazz musician-vocalists like Jack Teagarden, Wingy Manone, Red Allen et al. Instrumentally, his trumpeting skills were direct, open and solid. On keyboard, he favored the stride piano of Fats Waller. Aaron Irwin provided a good foil for Nugent on alto sax and clarinet. Paul Salter’s guitar was reminiscent of the great Carl Kress. Gary Cattley’s work on both tuba and string bass were excellent, and Skip Rorich’s light touch on drums propelled the right kind of swing for the Midnight Society.

All in all, Drew Nugent and the Midnight Society was a pleasant antidote to a dreary afternoon. To see more photos from this concert, go to: http://picasaweb.google.com/photos.tsjs/DrewNugentAndTheMidnightSociety#

RECALLING MUSIC OF THE PAST

Here’s a follow-up, nearly three years later in RECORD RESEARCH of May 1965, as reported by Victoria Spivey:

“Well, I can really say ‘Blues Are My Business’ this day. The last 60 days activities of the Spivey record company have brought me some of the most wonderful memories I have for quite a while. For over 35 years I have from time to time either been working with or watching the great Lonnie Johnson. He just gave my company a wonderful record session. I have never seen him with so much power. His fingers are impossible and what control he has of that guitar. Lonnie’s voice is much better today than it was 20 years ago. I just sat there spellbound and stared in astonishment.

“Another happy moment for me in the studio was to record the famous Lilllyn Brown who last recorded 40 years ago for the old Emerson records. She just stepped up to the mike like a 30 or 40 year old and had the studio rocking the same way she rocked the audience at the Celebrity Club in NYC months before. With her was her fine accompanist, Daniel Smalls, who plays a lot of piano backed up by a rocking fender bass, Albert Winston.

“Last but not least we were indeed happy to record the fabulous Viola Wells also known as ‘Miss Rhapsody’ who is known from coast to coast. Rhaps last recorded for Savoy 20 years ago. She tipped up on the mike like a purring kitten, purring for about a minute. Then she took off like a wildcat. I’m telling you she knocked my wig out the window. Sonny Greer was on drums and feeding her nothing but rhythm. About the 3rd chorus I looked sideways into the engineer’s room and there was the recording engineer doing the twist. Lenny K. (publisher of RR) was also doing the twist. She must have been saying something. I hope to have Lonnie, Rhaps, and Lilllyn out on the Spivey label before 1965 is too far gone.

“It looks like today that I had nothing but happy moments. I was just looking at my latest LP release(Spivey 1005) introducing ‘Mr. Shortstuff’ who is really John Wesley Macon, a Mississippian discovery by big Joe Williams who is also on the LP. I have been told by some people of authority on Blues that ‘Mr. Shortstuff’ is one of the greatest country blues singer since the day of men like Big Joe, Son House, Robert Johnson, and others. Well from that you know I’m happy. ‘Shortstuff’ is a small country boy with manners galore who acts to me like a little baby, not like most performers. As you know we have to be half crazy to go into show biz but this child has not become meshuga as yet (Smiles!). He is so pure and sincere it frightens you.” – Woody Backensto

RENEW MEMBERSHIP EARLY BEFORE DUES INCREASE
Tri-State Jazz Society has adopted lower concert admissions as part of a new membership policy, effective July 1, 2010. Current members can take advantage of a special, limited-time offer to renew their memberships at this year’s rates by renewing before the dues increase goes into effect on July 1, 2010.

Members will pay half the regular admission price for all concerts. That will be just $10 instead of the current $15 member price. Regular price for most concerts will remain $20. Current members in good standing who renew their membership before it expires on June 30, 2010 can pay next year’s dues at this year’s rates ($15 for individuals, $20 for couples). Regular membership dues paid after June 30, 2010 will be increased to $20 for individuals, $40 for couples. Expired members who have not paid dues for this year can also participate in this special offer by paying back dues for 2010 and pre-paying 2011 dues at the old rates by June 30, 2010. Because of half-price admissions, Regular membership will save a couple $10 after just three concerts (compared to current dues plus admission charges). By attending six concerts a year they will save $40. The goal is to enable those on tight entertainment budgets to attend more concerts.

For members who are unable to attend concerts, a Supporter class of membership will be available at $15. Supporters will not get discounts on concert admissions but, like Regular members, they can continue to receive a mailed copy of The Strutter each month. Members who have moved out of the area or have medical or travel limitations may wish to take advantage of this membership class. If Supporters attend a concert they will be asked to pay full price or to convert to a Regular membership.

CONTRIBUTIONS NEEDED TO SUSTAIN OPERATIONS

Like many other cultural nonprofit organizations this year, lower contributions and lower attendance at Tri-State Jazz Society have resulted in net losses. In the past, member contributions have enabled the organization to fund extraordinary expenses, to make up for budget shortfalls and to maintain a full concert schedule even though many of the concerts have operated at losses. This has been possible only because of the generosity of donors. To better recognize contributors and to encourage more consistent funding in the future, two new classes of premium memberships have been created. Members can now choose to support traditional jazz and the work of the jazz society by renewing for 2011 as Sponsors or Patrons.

- SPONSOR MEMBERSHIP:
  By including an extra $30 contribution as part of their annual dues, Sponsors will be helping TSJS to meet operating expenses and sustain a full schedule of concerts.

- PATRON MEMBERSHIP:
  By including an extra $80 or more as part of their annual dues, Patrons will enable the society to expand its educational programs and to include exceptional bands from outside the local area.

As a bonus, each Sponsor or Patron will receive one free pass good for admission to any concert during the year. Couples will get two passes. The free pass may be used for the Sponsor’s (or Patron’s) own admission or given to any non-member first-timer. Sponsors and Patrons will be recognized in the Tri-State Jazz Society Web site unless the contributor asks to be omitted from the listing.

Tri-State Jazz Society, Inc. is a 501(c) (3) tax-exempt educational nonprofit corporation. The full amount of annual membership dues at the Regular, Supporter, Sponsor or Patron level may be deductible as a charitable contribution for some taxpayers, but check with your tax advisor.

If you have questions about the new membership policy, please visit our Web site at www.tristatejazz.org/membership, send your questions to president@tristatejazz.org or email our membership chairman, Jay Schultz at membership@tristatejazz.org
